(429 n 427 - 347 BC) ACADEMIC school by Plato
The Academic school was founded by Plato (429 n 427 - 347 BC). He was a pupil of Socrates and the teacher of Aristotle.
His philosophy is still the greatest exposition of idealism and though based on the teachings of Socrates, goes far beyond them in speculation.
He taught in the quiet of a grove or garden, "AKADEMIA," near Athens.

and Plato's school came to be called the Academic school.

At the beginning of his philosophical career, he imagined that the gods drove shining chariots across the sky. He later decided the Earth was round (the Earth's shadow on the moon during an eclipse).

MITYLENE

To put down the revolt of LESBOS, an Island off the Coast of Asia Minor, the Athenians fitted out as large a fleet as they possibly could and laid siege to Mytilene, the Chief City of LESPOS. The inhabitants were finally forced to surrender. The leaders of the revolt were put to death and the land divided among Athenian landlords.
